html as_of a lot of stuff... Ah, now I know what he meant. I don't know any other way than that lotuspsychje: do you have a better suggestion? as_of: backup your data on the pc before use and make a fresh install? run it as a script that calls the executable? lotuspsychje: that doesn't seem like a viable option as_of, to be fair, you could delete the binary and then reinstall it. it's just that it will wipe out whatever you had on the disk and re-install no s-ton: i can reinstall the binary? as_of: i would suggest a fresh install mate if you could delete the binary and then download it, then yeah, you could reinstall it as_of: its not that complicated lotuspsychje: i'd prefer not to do that. as_of: not possible? lotuspsychje: on this install the only partitions are / and /swap. i haven't installed any programs, so i don't want to lose them. as_of: this is something a bit different... lotuspsychje: what do you mean? as_of: its like a clean install lotuspsychje: it will be a clean install as_of: yes but its a clean install as_of: only reccomended way is backup your data before and how do you do that when the only partition is /? as_of: as s-ton suggested, you could re-install the package, or use bleachbit to clean up your machine as_of: if you want a clean system, its the only way lotuspsychje: i have no way 82157476af
